

EUROVISION

“BINGO”

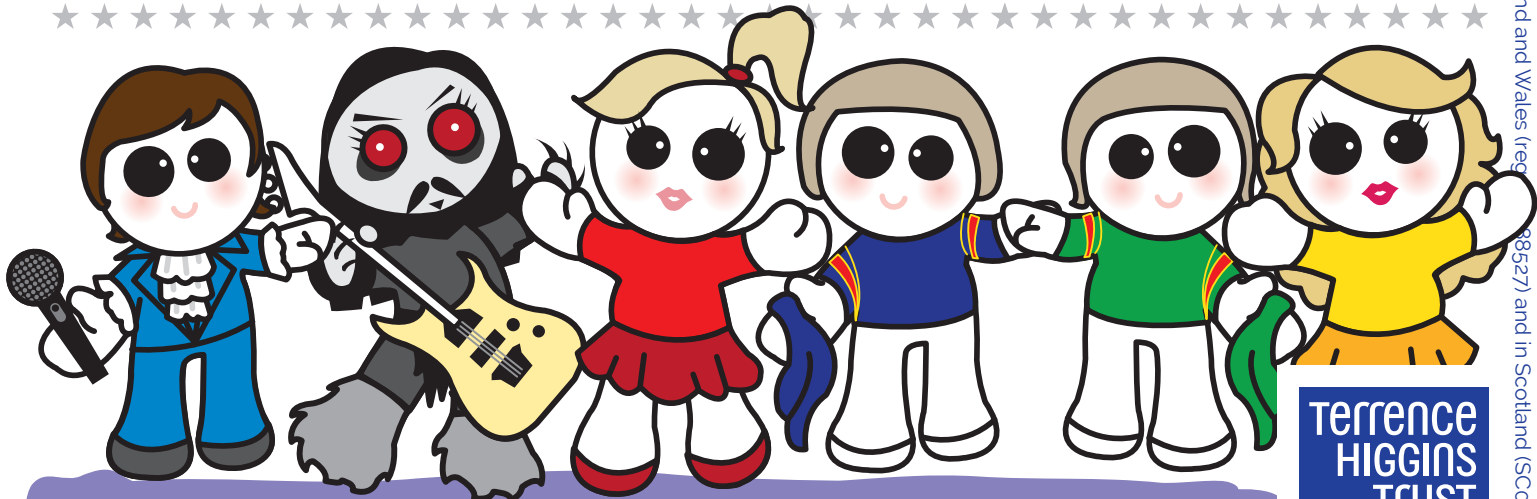

TEAM ONE

Eurovision is beloved for lots of things – eccentric singers, political voting and very snarky comments from the hosts. All of this adds up to an excellent game of

EUROVISION “BINGO”

Split in to two teams and compete against each other to see who can cross off their boxes fastest. Make sure you're paying attention!

Use of props during a performance <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Someone blows a kiss to the camera <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Someone mentions the theme of the final: 'Diversity' <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
Graham Norton makes fun of a country's pre-recorded video <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Graham Norton makes rude comment about the voting system <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Non-English singer sings in English <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
Two key changes in one song <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Someone thanks the host country for a wonderful evening <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	A country gives their neighbour 12 points <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
Graham Norton makes fun of another country's song <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Any mention of the conflict between Russia and Ukraine <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Presenter's outfit changes <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>

Your health and safety is the most important thing right now. If you're fundraising for us please ensure you are following guidance set by the Government and the NHS around social distancing and self-isolation. Check for the latest information here: www.gov.uk/coronavirus.