For the past 40 years, Terrence Higgins Trust has been revolutionising the fight against HIV and AIDS. What began as honouring the loss of a loved one has evolved into the UK's leading HIV and sexual health charity that provides essential education, funding and services to thousands living with HIV.

I've been involved with Terrence Higgins Trust for a number of years, and the fight to end this epidemic is a big piece of my mum's legacy. Like many, my mother grew up in a world where HIV was likely a death sentence. Yet, in the midst of all that uncertainty, she led with empathy, finding the humanity in all around her and demonstrating the power of connection in the face of fear. While my mother did not live to see the success of today's treatments, I feel immense pride in being able to continue her advocacy with you.

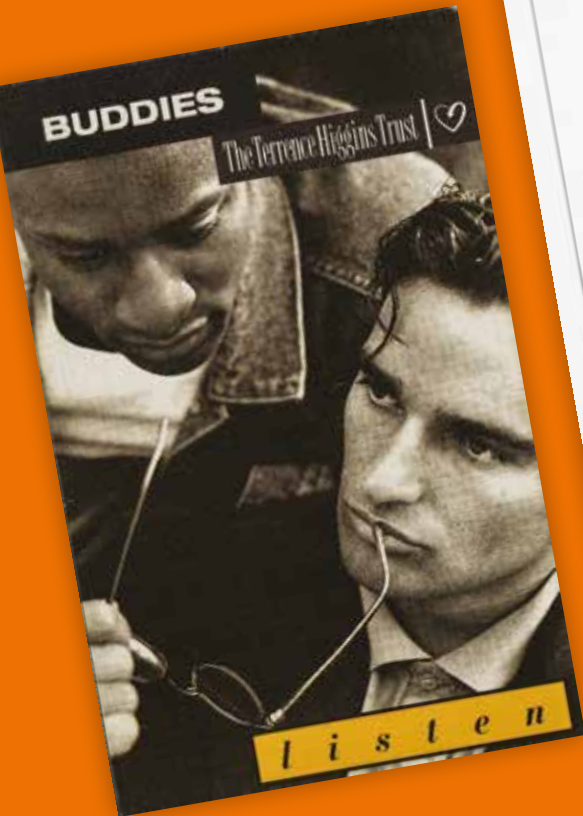

As Terrence Higgins Trust has evolved over the years, their goal has remained the same: end new transmissions. Terrence Higgins Trust has pledged to make England the first country to end new HIV cases by 2030, but they need all of us to do our part by encouraging testing so we all know our status, eradicating stigma that thrives on silence, and donating the resources Terrence Higgins Trust needs to keep up their efforts at pace.

Though the last 40 years have shown significant progress, we cannot slow down now, we must finish the job.

My biggest and heartfelt congratulations on this historic milestone. May the next one we celebrate signal an end to the HIV/AIDS epidemic for all.

Thank you!

Prince Harry, The Duke of Sussex

HIGGINS
TRUST

DEAR FRIENDS,

It's my pleasure to welcome you to The Auction 2023 in this incredible setting. Christie's have been the most amazing hosts for decades, and we salute them.

You might know this is my very first event since becoming Chief Executive of Terrence Higgins Trust – I hope all my events will be such stylish affairs with such fabulous supporters. To become the charity's new Chief Executive is an honour and privilege. Ian Green OBE's legacy is the envy of many in the charity sector. I would like to take the opportunity to thank him for all he's done to progress our vital cause in the last seven years. He leaves huge shoes to fill and an organisation ready to face our challenge ahead and meet some very ambitious goals.

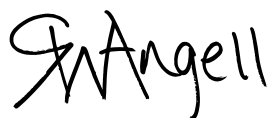

We've spent the last year marking four decades since the death of Terry Higgins, when he became the first named person in the UK to die of an AIDS-related illness in 1982. Together we celebrated Terry's incredible legacy and the many who came before us on whose shoulders we stand. But now our eyes are firmly set on the future.

We know what urgently needs to happen to end new HIV cases by 2030. It means expanding the transformative impact of opt-out HIV testing in A&E departments to more areas that need it. It means unblocking access to the game-changing prevention drug PrEP. It means ensuring sexual and reproductive healthcare is the national priority it should be and ending the stigma and discrimination still surrounding HIV.

That is why we are all here tonight. We know that not only can we end HIV cases by 2030, we could also be the first country to do so. If we do, this will be the first virus we have stopped in its tracks without a vaccine, or a cure. But we can do this. While Terrence Higgins Trust will do this with our partners, it will not happen without us and your support every step of the way.

I would like to say a huge thank you to our Auction Committee for their commitment and unwavering support in making The Auction such a special event – we quite simply couldn't do it without you.

Finally, thank you to every single person here this evening, as well as those of you supporting online. Here's to a wonderful night that will change the lives of people affected by HIV and poor sexual health.

A NOTE FROM OUR CO-CHAIRS

Portraits by James Basire

“I've been involved with the Auction Committee for 20 years and am absolutely thrilled to now Co-Chair the event that has meant so much to me for decades. Terrence Higgins Trust's tireless objective of supporting sexual health, particularly HIV and of ending new transmissions by 2030, has more meaning since I recently became a first-time parent.

On behalf of the committee, we hope you have a wonderful evening whilst knowing you are directly helping many attain the most basic right of a healthy future.”

Lal Dalamat

Co-Chair Auction Committee

“What's more rewarding than helping a dear friend celebrating an anniversary? Organising one! It gives a chance to reflect on the life-changing support that Terrence Higgins Trust has brought to so many, from changing lives to changing point of views and shifting the public's perception of what it means to live with HIV in 2023.

Such a celebration could not be organised without a group of friends – the Auction Committee – who deliver an amazing array of Lots and experiences for this evening's celebration. Thank you for all your hard work in finding the most exotic, refined, farfetched, rarest and at times funniest items that define the uniqueness of this special celebration. On a personal note, thank you for the fun we shared putting together this year's auction.”

WE CAN STOP AN EPIDEMIC

In our 40th Anniversary year, we've been remembering Terry Higgins and reflecting on the work we've accomplished together since 1982. The progress we've made has only been possible with your support – together we've changed HIV in the UK.

We have more to do. We've seen incredible advances in prevention, testing, treatment and care for those living with HIV. But we still have big challenges if we're to make sure that everyone can access the tools to protect themselves and others, so we finally end HIV transmissions.

TURNED AWAY FROM PROTECTION

Our recent report revealed that 65% of people who want to access the highly effective HIV prevention drug PrEP are unable to do so. Two-thirds of people told us that they faced unacceptably long waiting times or were turned away due to the lack of appointments.

We have all fought so hard to get PrEP free on the NHS – we can't let our hard work go to waste. We're working urgently with decision-makers at all levels to ensure that everyone who needs it has access to PrEP. Protecting yourself and your partner shouldn't be a lottery, but a right.

Thank you for being here with us this evening. You're helping to make history and end new cases of HIV by 2030.

EVERYDAY WE FIGHT MISINFORMATION AND STIGMA

HIV has changed, but we see time and again that many people's views of HIV remain stuck in the decade when Terry Higgins died. Stigma can have devastating consequences in the lives of people living with and affected by HIV.

Stigma can prevent someone from taking a test and getting the care and treatment they need. It can prevent those newly-diagnosed from getting the support they need from those around them.

Our work to educate and dispel myths through changing perceptions and knowledge in the general public is as vital as it's ever been – it's also key to our goal to stop HIV transmissions. If we find and test everyone living with HIV and get them onto treatment so HIV can't be passed on, we can stop an epidemic.

HOW WE STOP AN EPIDEMIC

Last April, opt-out HIV testing in A&E departments in areas with very high prevalence started. This game-changing approach to HIV testing wouldn't have happened without tireless campaigning and the help of our supporters.

Its ground-breaking success is clear: in just the first 100 days, there were 128 new HIV diagnoses and 65 people living with HIV were returned to care. Opt-out testing is good for people's health, stops onward transmission and will save the NHS money by diagnosing people before their health is in crisis.

Over the next year, we need to keep campaigning to ensure that opt-out testing is expanded everywhere. By supporting people living with HIV to get on treatment and live well, we can end new HIV cases by 2030.

Portrait Painters Annual Exhibition and has exhibited with the Royal Institute of Oil Painters. He shows internationally, from Los Angeles, New York, to Mykonos and Ireland.

As a figurative painter, Cox is fascinated by everyday lives going about their business on the streets of London. By taking an individual out of the frantic crowd around them and painting them in solitude into his minimalist backgrounds, he changes the anonymous to the focal point.

01 PANDEMONIA TANGLED PAIR, 2022

*Acrylic paint on canvas
Height 102cm x width 77cm
Signed*

Created in the mid-2000s by an anonymous London artist, Pandemonia is a multi-media conceptual art project centred around a female motif. Pandemonia is a vessel for the artist to travel through society and pass through the media eye into the intersubjective world of myth and brand. Through art exhibitions and public interventions, Pandemonia has been absorbed by the media complex, appearing in print, film and major product advertisements to reach and affect public consciousness.

Tangled Pair depicts the superposition of a pair of legs. Incorporating elements of the figure, Pandemonia considers the delicate system of being in two states at once – the contradictions between the Subatomic and Newtonian reality in Quantum mechanics point to reality as a constructed illusion. Structures and forms in society are not fixed and can be changed.

DAVID STUDIO & DAN STUDIO, 2023

Portrait size height 45cm x width 38cm
Landscape size height 38cm x width 46cm
Framed size height 68cm x width 76cm

These male body studies in daylight were taken in Mariano Vivanco's studio in Islington, London. Dan was photographed in the year 2020 and David in 2021. The nude subjects are caught in a state between motion and stillness. Light flows from the side through grand windows over the herculean physiques, creating definition and highlighting form. Exposed to the environment in an empty space, the men have only four walls protecting them from forces outside of their bodies. Strength in vulnerability, the subjects surrender to the energy exchange between themselves and the viewer.

These two giclée prints come in custom hand-made gilded silver leaf frames with UV-filtering low-glare glass.

Signed, dated and titled on verso

Inscribed verso 'for Terence Higgins Trust 10.10.22'

Antony Gormley is widely acclaimed for his sculptures, installations and public artworks that investigate the relationship of the human body to space. Gormley was awarded the Turner Prize in 1994, and received an OBE in 1997 with a knighthood following in 2014. Gormley has been a Royal Academician since 2003.

About this work, the artist says: "Forms of reproduction in which the distinctions between one body becoming two, mitosis and two bodies becoming one and sexual intercourse become interchangeable has long been a preoccupation. I have explored it through drawing and sculpture for over three decades. These drawings start with an organic liquid that pools and, like an amoeba, evolves into binary form: I hope that familiar binaries like self/other, artist/model, creator/created are made pliable, porous and questionable in this process of becoming and emergence."

KENNY EVERETT GIANT HANDS

From a lost corner at the television company Mammoth Screen's Fitzrovia studios to Christie's is a journey that these iconic 1980s hands never expected to take, but we promised you one-of-a-kind pieces in this year's Auction.

Comedy legend Kenny Everett had a chequered history, being instrumental in getting Queen's 'Bohemian Rhapsody' released as a single as a DJ for Capital Radio. Later he was a vocal supporter of Margaret Thatcher, but as a closeted gay man, he faced criticism for supporting a Conservative government that enacted Section 28. Everett was later diagnosed with HIV and died of AIDS-related illness in 1995.

Wearing the enormously oversized foam rubber hands familiar from his mock-evangelical character Brother Lee Love on BBC's The Kenny Everett Television Show became one of Everett's lasting comedic moments.

Raise your hands and bid for a bit of 80s television history!

Note: These working hands are nearly 40 years old with many years' television experience so please expect a few bumps.

Philip Michael Wolfson studied architecture at Cornell University, and at the Architectural Association, London, where he was discovered by Zaha Hadid.

In 1991, Wolfson established his own studio and has worked throughout Europe and the USA on interiors and art pieces.

© Philip Michael Wolfson

These two pieces are taken from the series of works 'NewLands and Flowers – MAPS', and are abstract cartographic examinations of movement and urban development, and their associated 'Red Squares' which are the generating centres of power, influence and domination.

These maps represent a remote, alternate reality. They are views of our world as seen through an augmented lens; one of innocence, one free from predetermined ideas, unfettered by the malignancies of the metropolis. Growth, Blossom, Decay: Stages of Nature/Life and Urban/Power. In an alternate reality, we can question the rights and wrongs that are to be instituted and imposed – be it natural or made by man.

In addition to the choice of either MAPS - New York or MAPS - Rome, The Vatican, Wolfson is offering to paint a different city of your choice on request and a tour of his Epping studio for up to 8 guests.

Gary James McQueen was first introduced to the fashion industry by his late uncle Alexander McQueen, who mentored and inspired him to be the artist he is today. Employed as head textile designer for the Alexander McQueen MRTW in 2005, he began exploring how artwork could be applied in various ways. From working with the silhouette of clothing, he could develop a niche of optical-illusion textile design, constantly pushing himself and the boundaries of what could be achieved using a 3D canvas as the basis.

Moonlight Serenade is a story of rebirth and the cycle of creative energy. It's a celebration of femininity with influences of dark matter, and the theory of relativity visualised as other worldly entities suspended in space.

London-based multidisciplinary artist Alexander B Glass was called one of '5 queer artists you need to know' by ID magazine.

A Body A Monster is a drypoint on acrylic cast into a marble effect locker door. Glass says: "It portrays the excitement and the anxiety that is evoked by the highly charged space of the locker room. Almost everyone has experiential memories relating to locker rooms and they are often complex. Locker rooms are frequently portrayed in cinematic media as a place of sexual awakening, but also as a place where bodies are vulnerable. This etching balances on the both of these sides of the space, offering a suggestion of narrative that goes where the viewer wishes it to."

Animals in art traditionally imply the beast within, but also variously symbolise by turns faith and faithfulness, innocence, playfulness, capriciousness and vulnerability. London-based contemporary painter Felipe Chavez was born in Colombia. He uses his own body to explore the male form and its relationship with sexuality and space as a gay man, alongside his own personal struggles to find where he belongs. By being open and revealing through his art, Chavez says he creates a sense of power and control over who he is and who he chooses to exhibit.

Waiting For Us Behind White Cliffs is an homage to the memory of a quiet moment during his time in a remote island in Greece, on a beach under white cliffs, where for once, he felt absent from his mental troubles and found peace. He remembers posing alone for the photograph he used to create the painting, while the ominous cliffs surrounding him kept him company and provided a safe space to digest his turmoil.

Ernesto Romano is an Italian artist living and working in London. Romano's works are digital or photographic prints, based on his own X-Rays. He has exhibited nationally and internationally.

Heavy is the Head That Wears The Crown borrows its title from Shakespeare, a metaphor often used to talk about the burden and difficulties of being a leader. The composition of 48 imaginary X-Rayed Coronation crowns (St. Edwards Crown) arranged in a rainbow gradient, is an homage to the legacy of HM Elizabeth II as well as her cultural influence during 70 years of reign, and a celebration of continuity with Charles III.

As with all of Romano's work, the use of colours and symbols in this piece are aimed to approach the matter (in this case leadership) with values that above all promote diversity and inclusion.

His recent works include a collaboration with Donna Karan NY and Gordon Ramsey. His works currently grace the walls of one of Mr Ramsey's latest culinary ventures.

Frizzarin's colourful 3D works depicts a narrative between them and the viewer, the obsession with reality creating a sense of parallel world between consciousness and subconsciousness. The use of bold colours and lines crossing the works mark separation but at the same time bring the painting together.

The Journey represents one along which we all have to travel as we deal with our identity, and try to comprehend who we really are. The butterflies symbolise freedom and the geometric figures are the solid structures we need to hold onto during our life to become adults. Finally, the letters symbolise our inner voices that we constantly question.

London-based artist Georg Meyer-Wiel studied at the Royal College of Art and works both as an artist and designer of costume and stage for contemporary dance, ballet, film and opera. He has had major exhibitions at Hockney Gallery London, Henry Moore Gallery London, Michael Commerford Gallery Sydney, amongst others.

Following Meyer-Wiel's life-long habit of collecting historical documents, this figurative original life study is executed on a vintage account sheet from the 1950s.

The subject of the document creates a unique narrative by placing the figures in a time and place that actually has once existed, in a world now long lost. Meyer-Wiel's artworks on old envelopes, receipts and other certificates invite us to travel the world and map out long forgotten journeys and relations, and to imagine the real people that once used these documents.

James Robert Morrison graduated with an MA Fine Art from Central Saint Martins. He has been shortlisted for the Derwent Art Prize (2022), selected for the Royal Academy Summer Exhibition (2021) and won the Mervyn Metcalf Purchase Prize at the ING Discerning Eye Exhibition (2021). His work is held in the UK Government Art Collection and private collections in the UK, USA and China.

The artist overheard a teenager describing a gay couple as 'never having more than a fag paper between them'. Morrison says: "In my teenage years, I didn't know anyone gay, there were no 'out and proud' public figures and school was an exclusively heteronormative environment due to Section 28. The only gay couples I had to look up to were to be found in my collection of gay porn magazines".

Inspired by this and the play on words, James has created a series of drawings portraying couples from his personal archive of gay porn magazines on the unique and challenging medium: fag (cigarette) papers. Phil and Jacob is the first drawing created from the series. It was shortlisted for the Trinity Buoy Wharf Drawing Prize in 2020 and was awarded a special commendation.

PARADOX OF ONE, 2023

Paradox of one is a self-portrait by Dan Ashley, inspired by a black and white image taken by photographer Charles Moriarty. Using ink, charcoal, graphite pencil and acrylic paint, he captures the drama of light and shade of a nude male figure. The beauty of the male form can be traced back to Ancient Greece where depictions celebrated the male body as a reflection of heroic and athletic beauty.

This male nude abandons the conventions of classical realism to portray the body in diagrammatic, ergonomic imagery; half man-half machine. This work of art explores notions of vulnerability versus power and frailties of mind and body.

Dominic Myatt graduated from Goldsmiths in 2014 after studying Fine Art and History of Art and from the Royal Drawing School in 2019. He has since worked on commissions for clients such as Channel 4, Vivienne Westwood, SHOWstudio, Selfridges, and in 2021 produced Penile Papers, a book of phallic drawings with proceeds split between Terrence Higgins Trust and Runnymede Trust. His practice often explores the space between sexual fantasy and stark reality and is partly informed by his work as a tattooist. A copy of (no kissing) is held in the Tate collection.

(no kissing) is a collection of around 30 drawings by artist Dominic Myatt bound together in a book, each illustrating a "men seeking men" (m4m) ad from London's Craigslist listings: typos and misspellings included. The ads range from the graphic to the sublime to the absurd, while the Egon Schiele-esque drawings are witty, sensitive and never seek to sensationalise the already-sensational.

Lonsdale's abstract figurative paintings explore a dual narrative that conveys at once innately personal recollections and universal metaphors. She says: "My figures are protagonists of their own narratives. Stick Bearer alludes to the experience of finding one's tribe in the world, represented by a strong and independent figure, dancing, and carrying and supporting loved ones through life's journey."

Photograph size height 42cm x width 29.7cm
Framed size is 36.1/2 cm x 43.1/2 cm

At the early age Marco Sanges started to work at his uncle's photographic lab and became fascinated by the process of developing and printing black and white photography. Sanges creates photographs in sequence, inspired by the black and white films of the silent era. Every sequence tells a unique, multi-layered story, creating a highly personal, imaginary cinema. Larger than life characters and lavish costume are reminiscent of surrealism and the visual and performing arts of the 1920s and 30s as he sets the scene, as a scene in a film unfolds a story.

He has exhibited worldwide and published extensively with clients including Agent Provocateur, Cutler & Gross, Vogue, Dolce&Gabbana and Harpers Bazar.

I'LL LET HEAVEN DECIDE, 2022

LOT

Lee Kay Barry is a London-based artist and studied at University of Leeds and the Universidad Politécnica de Valencia. Taking influence from the warm and bold Mediterranean colours, Kay-Barry's paintings present an entangled but tender relationship between performer and spectator. He has exhibited internationally and managed art residencies in London.

Kay Barry says: "I'll Let Heaven Decide represents a moment in time where I had to make some serious decisions in my life that would impact my future. Taking inspiration from my childhood love for comics and cartoons, I used a Two Face character that is shown to be holding up a coin as if deciding which side to choose. The fact that the figure is shown with the coin tilted captures my personal indecisive nature."
